

UK Suffolk Semen To Be Available In US

Noted Scottish breeders Logie Durno Sheep currently have two Suffolk Rams in semen collection that will be eligible for US import. This represents a unique opportunity to acquire the first new UK Suffolk genetics available in the US for many years.

Following lengthy UK quarantine and a wide range of comprehensive health checks the two rams started collection this week. The rams will undergo a final Schmallenberg virus test 30 days after last collection. Semen will then be eligible for US export and breeding this year.

At the Logie Durno annual on farm production sale over 300 rams from 4 breeds are offered. Logie also has high genetic Texel and Bluefaced Leicester rams being collected for semen export to the US at this time. Each year they sell over 600 pedigree and composite breeding rams.

Bruce Ingram stated:

“Bentley Fly Half – The best Suffolk stud ram ever used at Logie Durno. His first crop of shearing rams sold this year were by far the best we have produced being keenly sought after by both pedigree and commercial farmers. Fly Half leaves big long easily fleshed progeny, which are very active, and correct, I would be happy to recommend them to any breeder. This is backed up by some great estimated breeding values being in the top 1% for 8 week weight and 21 week weight and the top 5% for muscle depth, maternal traits and overall carcass index.”

Bruce Ingram stated:

“Bentley 239:16:02498 – A new purchase for this year, after the success of our previous Bentley ram we returned to buy another from the same stud with different genetics. This is a tall long clean ram with a relatively fine bone, silky black hair and good carriage. He is an active ram with a level topline and tight wool. He also has strong recording figures, which we expect to see in his progeny. He is in the top 5% of the breed for 8-week weight, muscle depth, maternal index and overall Terminal Index and in the top 1% of the breed for 21-week weight. This ram has the influence of NZ Suffolk genetics in his pedigree.”

Bentley 239:16:02498 has his first lambs being born into the flock.
