TERMS & CONDITIONS OF SALE

ALL RAMS ARE BLUE TONGUE VACCINATED (BULTAVO 3)

All rams will be offered for sale through the ring, starting at the price indicated in the catalogue.

Rams purchased must be paid in full on the day before receiving a movement license and pass.

If rams are to be collected later, this has to be cleared with staff at the desk and will be done at buyers own risk.

2026 is the 21st Annual Ram Sale

Viewing of the rams starts at 1pm, sale starts at 3pm

Rams will be penned in groups of 5.

Each ram in the pen will be the same breed and starting price.

Once a ram is purchased the buyer will receive a slip at the ringside showing the rams number and price.

The slip needs to be taken to the desk and once it is paid for, a movement licence and pass will be given for the animal(s)

Please have your CPH and vehicle registration number ready!

A MEMBER OF STAFF WILL BE ON HAND TO LOAD YOUR RAM(S)

PLEASE WAIT FOR ASSISTANCE

The sale does offer the option to leave your ram(s) to be collected/delivered at a later date this has to be cleared with the staff at the desk.

Meat sire
Texel

Our Texels are bred to make our customers as much profit as possible, so we have bred Texels which are long and easily lambed.

Grow very Quickly

High growth rates can be difficult to achieve in breeds which have superior muscling. What we have done is reduce the bone and breed for longer and longer sheep year on year. Lambs are noticeably longer now with larger frames allowing them to put kg on quickly achieving younger slaughter ages.

Tight Clean Skins

We have bred for very tight skins which is a sign of high meat yield and a lean carcass. As well as this our Texels have reduced in bone weight over the years. Tight skin, lean carcass and less bone equals higher KO%. Texels also have a clean underline and a clean backend which maximizes forage intake and minimizes wastage.

Meat sire
Durno Beltex

Durno Beltex lambs offer the highest killing out percentage of all our breeds and add great shape to the hindquarters of any lamb.

Easy Lambing

Durno Beltex lambs have a low birth weight making them ideal for hoggs and first time lambers. Also the lambs show great vigour at birth and are quick to suck.

High KO%

Beltex genetics have always given high killing out percentages but with performance recording we have managed to push it further. We select deeper muscles with optimum fat cover in the loin and use performance recording to identify the genetics with the best results.

Quality Prime Lambs

Lambs have tight skins with shape and width, making them ideal for live sale. They are a great improver tup and can be used on poorer ewes to get a good lamb or hoggs.

Meat sire
Durno

Durnos were our first composite breed, and most popular meat sire.

The Durno is a terminal composite sire produced exclusively by Logie Durno Sheep, based on its unique breeding, selection and management features. Terminal sires like the Durno are designed to be used across any ewe giving their offspring increased; hybrid vigour, growth rate and saleable meat.

Durno rams contain Charollais and Texel genetics. The Charollais part of this equation provides this hybrid line with length, high growth rate and tremendous conformation in an easily lambing package.

The inclusion of the Texel bloodline gives offspring hardiness, gigot and easy fleshing, making the Durno ideal for most ewes.

The parent stock of Durno rams are lambled in April in a system just like any flock producing fat lambs. At lambing time they are recorded in the unique Logie Durno way providing customers with both signet breeding values and physical data of lambing ease, hardiness and vigour at birth.

Shearling rams which come from this flock therefore have excelled and past every selection hurdle, in a system that their offspring are likely to be reared in. It makes sense to buy a ram that has thrived on grass, if that is what your own lambs eat.

All Durno rams for sale today have been presented off grass with no dressing.

As an aid for selection these rams were back fat scanned like the terminal rams available throughout the sale, giving Estimated Breeding Values (EBV's) for all terminal sire traits recorded by signet. These figures should be used as an aid for selection by buyers. A helpful tip is to look at your own flock and select on individual traits to advance your flock, for example if you want to finish lambs quickly then select for a high 8wk and scan weight EBV. At Logie Durno we have been actively selecting for average or positive fat depths to allow lambs with extreme growth rates to fatten at the correct time and not go over weight.

Meat sire
Suffolk

Our Suffolks have the largest depth of muscle in the loin of all our breeds, and have some of the largest growth rates.

Logie Durno Suffolks have been designed to provide farmers with rams possessing all the great traits of the Suffolk breed, but with a lighter bone structure and better carcass.

High Growth Rate

High growth rate reduces days to slaughter and allows more land for ewes, increasing flock size. The Suffolk has our highest growth rates to 8 weeks old which makes them ideal for getting lambs away before the price drops mid summer.

Commercial Breeding Goals

Our selection is focused on commercial profits, and not the show or sale ring. We are looking for a tight skin on a long, correct and wide body. These type of sheep breed great store and fattening lambs with minimal wastage.

Direct & live sales

Often live sales can be poor for Suffolk lambs. However with the inclusion of the Texel genetics, lambs have a fuller backend and whiter head which suits the live ring. This doesn't mean that they have lost the qualities needed for an efficient direct kill lamb.

Growth & carcass

This new breed to our team will act as a dual purpose sire on most ewes, due to the exceptional growth and carcass that they have. As young rams they are reaching 100kg more quickly than any other breed while having an enormous depth of muscle in the loin where it counts.

Meat sire

Charollais

Charollais have been at Logie Durno for over 30 years, and our flock has built up a depth of breeding second to none, which has proved its quality being in demand across the UK, EIRE and into Europe.

Easy Lambing

The Charollais has a small head and light bone in comparison to its body weight, making its offspring very easy to lamb. Their shoulders are narrower than any of the other terminal breeds that we have, but still have some of the highest amounts of meat. They are ideal for ewe lambs because of their easy lambing.

Fat Weight Quickly

Our Charollais match our Suffolk lambs for growth reaching slaughter weight unbelievably quickly. In 2017 we had new season Charollais lambs sold live at 50kg for 254p/kg at just over 3 months old. Growth rate is especially useful for an indoor lambing flock that uses creep feed, as there is more profit the quicker their lambs go away as every day costs are occurred

The whole flock is out wintered and anything that struggles or needs any additional care is culled leaving only the hardest and fittest bloodlines which we offer commercial farmers. We also believe the figures to be very important as it's not only the direct progeny of the lambs that must perform but their progeny also.

Performance Recorded

The Logie Durno Flock is one of the few performance recorded flocks of BFL in the UK. As the Mule is one of the most popular breeds of commercial ewe in the UK we think it is vital that there is performance recording used to enhance it. Recording growth and fat helps to produce rams that have daughters with more milk and higher outputs.

Dual purpose sire
Fronteira

Fronteiras are a great choice for breeding both replacement females and prime lambs.

LOGIE DURNO FRONTEIRA'S ARE THE RAM FOR YOU IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR:

- A dual purpose sire providing replacement females and quality prime lambs.
- Lambs with length and growth rate.
- Prolific ewes which thrive on grass systems.
- Ideal for keeping a closed flock.
- Suitable for indoor or outdoor lambing.

The Fronteira has been developed over recent years encompassing Texel and Blue Faced Leicester genetics. They are predominantly maternal sires for breeding replacement females, with the added benefit of producing a top quality prime lamb. This has been proven in our own trials where Fronteira lambs have matched terminal sires for growth rate and killing out percentage, whilst maintaining good carcase grades.

Fronteira Rams contain: 50% Texel Genetics, 50% BF Leicester genetics.

Maternal sire
Logie

Logies are our lowest input breed and can be lambled outside on a totally grass system

The Logie is a maternal composite sire produced exclusively by Logie Durno Sheep, based on its unique breeding, selection and management features. Maternal sires like the Logie are designed to give customers ease of lambing, and offspring which are ideal for retaining as replacement ewes in a flock, providing increased mothering ability and productivity. Logie rams contain 50% Lleyne genetics and 50% Durno genetics. The Lleyne part of this equation provides this hybrid line with a high lambing percentage, aiming at 200%+ scanning results, while also having great mothering instincts and milking ability. The inclusion of the Durno line gives offspring increased growth rates and conformation while still retaining lambing ease and vigour to fit into a low input system. The parent stock of Logie rams are lambled outside in May, with only grass and pre-lambing blocks. This method of rearing allows for culling of weak or troublesome animals, leaving behind sheep which get on with the job. Shearling rams which come from this flock therefore have shown the ability to survive completely outside with their mothers and then achieved top growth rates to be selected as a sire for the future.

All Logie rams for sale today have been presented off grass with no dressing. As an aid for selection these rams were back fat scanned like the terminal rams available throughout the sale, giving actual measurements for muscle depth, fat depth and weight at scan. These figures should be used as an aid for selection but used only as a guide as these figures are actual readings and not EBV's. For example the weight will be affected by the varying ages of rams through the month of birth.

Logie Rams contain, 50% Lleyne genetics and 50% Durno genetics.

Customer Testimonials

Logies are our lowest input breed and can be lambed outside on a totally grass system

Steven and Lizzie Walker Anderton Fold Farm, Preston

We run a commercial flock of sheep alongside our Hoghton View pedigree Hereford herd. We used to run 1000 North of England mules to Texel x Beltex tups. We had a hard look at, tup longevity, ewes milk from grass, ease of lambing and vigour. We decided we wanted to change to a self replacing flock of medium sized white faced ewes that we could lamb from grass and sell some females. We felt the Logie breed would be a great way of introducing these assets to the flock. Now we are lambing outside from 10th of April in two cycles, with the logie male lambs finishing on farm between 20-22kg R/U3L. The replacement Logie females we have bred are nice sized ewes and great mothers with plenty of milk from grass. We are happy that we are breeding the right type of sheep for our modern low maintenance farm.

Millie Lear and her family who farm in West Sussex.

"We are lambing 430 this year, mainly 1/2 and 3/4 bred Logie mules, a few Durno mules, and a few mules too - all to Logie and Durno tups. All outdoors, all year round. They are prolific, have longevity (my oldest Durno mules are having their 6th crops this year and Logies are on their 5th crops) 188% at scanning across the flock. Huge udders, plenty of milk, loads of vigour and very maternal ewes.

I'm one happy customer."
